THE TRACK

ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Kieran Simkin is an independent songwriter, bassist and producer based in Seaford, East Sussex. His songs use compact narrative writing to look at public rituals, private pressure and the uncomfortable distance between the two. On “Santa Flies Tonight”, Kieran’s music, lyrics and bass meet Matthew Luke Reeves’ vocal performance in a restrained alternative-pop setting. The result is a wintry character study that keeps its humour, hurt and seasonal detail in uneasy balance throughout, with restraint.

Content note: the fictional lyric contains strong language and suicidal-ideation/crisis imagery. It is intended for adult editorial or specialist programming, not family or daytime rotation. The song is not presented as a charity or mental-health-expertise project.
